Michael Crummey

Canadian poet and writer (Newfoundland and Labrador)

Michael Crummey was born in the mining town of Buchans, Newfoundland, growing up there and in Wabush, a Labrador mining town near the Quebec border. After high school he attended Memorial University of Newfoundland, then moved to Ontario to pursue graduate work in English Literature. He has been a full-time writer for the past 15 years. He moved home to Newfoundland in 1999 and now lives in St. John's with his wife and family.

Michael Crummey has published ten books of poetry and fiction and has written for television and film. His first novel, River Thieves, was a finalist for the Giller Prize and won the Atlantic Fiction Prize. Galore won the Canadian Authors' Association Fiction Award, the Commonwealth Prize (Canada & Caribbean Region), and was shortlisted for the International IMPAC Dublin Award. Sweetland was a national bestseller and a finalist for the Governor-General's and Winterset Awards. His fiction has been published in the United States, the UK, France, Holland, Poland, and Italy. Little Dogs: New and Selected Poems was published by House of Anansi in the spring of 2016.

At the 13th Annual Graduate Conference of the Association for Canadian Studies in German-Speaking Countries, Michael Crummey will read short pieces from his newly released Little Dogs: New and Selected Poems as well as several short passages from his latest novel, Sweetland.

The reading will take place on June 25, 2016 18:00 at the Department of Romance Studies of the University of Vienna.
